

SEASONING YOUR AUSSIE CAMP OVEN

Wash first to remove the waxy oil coating.

Your Aussie Camp Oven needs to be broken in or 'seasoned'

Slowly melt a tablespoon of oil or fat into the Camp Oven, using a wooden spoon to coat the bottom surface thoroughly. Remove from heat and with a paper towel, coat sides with oil. Using another paper towel wipe off all excess oil. If you feel that the amount of black showing on the towel is excessive, let the Camp Oven cool and repeat the process. Do not continue repeating until the towel is spotless, only until a good amount of oil/fat is rubbed into all surfaces.

Wash using mild soap – never a strong detergent. After each wash Dry Thoroughly.

SEASONING YOUR AUSSIE CAMP OVEN

Wash first to remove the waxy oil coating

Your Aussie Camp Oven needs to be broken in or 'seasoned'

Slowly melt a tablespoon of oil or fat into the Camp Oven, using a wooden spoon to coat the bottom surface thoroughly. Remove from heat and with paper towel, coat sides with oil. Using another paper towel wipe off all excess oil. If you feel that the amount of black showing on the towel is excessive, let the Camp Oven cool and repeat the process. Do not continue repeating until the towel is spotless, only until a good amount of oil/fat is rubbed into all surfaces.

Wash using mild soap – never a strong detergent. After each wash Dry Thoroughly.

SEASONING YOUR AUSSIE CAMP OVEN

Wash first to remove the waxy oil coating.

Your Aussie Camp Oven needs to be broken in or 'seasoned'

Slowly melt a tablespoon of oil or fat into the Camp Oven, using a wooden spoon to Coat the bottom surface thoroughly. Remove from heat and with paper towel, coat sides with oil. Using another paper towel wipe of all excess oil. If you feel that the amount of black showing on the towel is excessive, let the Camp Oven Cool and repeat the process. Do not continue repeating until the towel is spotless, only until a good amount of oil/fat is rubbed into all surfaces.

Wash using a mild soap-never a strong detergent, After each wash Dry Thoroughly.